Serves 4

INGREDIENTS

- 2 trimmed hanger steaks, center vein removed (about 1 pound each)
- Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 3 tablespoons vegetable or canola oil
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter, plus 1 to 2 tablespoons for finishing sauce (optional)
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled and minced
- 2 large shallots, peeled and thinly sliced
- 1 cup dry red wine, such as Merlot or Chianti
- 1 cup rich beef stock
- 6 sprigs fresh thyme, plus 2 tablespoons chopped thyme leaves, for garnish
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

STEPS

1. Allow the steaks to rest at room temperature for 30 minutes. Pat dry and season generously on all sides with salt and pepper.
2. In a large skillet, heat the oil over medium-high heat until hot but not smoking.
3. Sear the steaks until a dark brown crust forms, about 4 to 6 minutes per side for medium-rare. Transfer to a cutting board with a well, tent loosely with foil, and rest at least 10 minutes.
4. Pour off and discard the oil. Over medium heat, add 1 tablespoon butter and heat until it foams. When the foaming subsides, add the garlic and shallots and cook, stirring, until softened and lightly browned, 5 to 7 minutes.
5. Add the wine, stock, thyme sprigs and mustard, scraping up the browned bits. Cook until the liquid is reduced by half, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove the thyme sprigs, season with salt and pepper, and stir in the butter, if using. Keep warm over low heat.
6. Slice the steaks 1/2-inch thick across the grain. Divide among four warmed plates, drizzle with pan sauce, and garnish with chopped thyme. Serve with extra sauce on the side.

> Heart-healthy tip: Skip the optional finishing butter. The wine-and-mustard reduction is rich enough without it.
